Music awards, movies and

The foremost movers and shakers in the music biz descend on The Point in Dublin this month for the MTV Europe Music Awards. Local lad Ronan Keating of Boyzone is the host for the ceremony, which is being broadcast live on the channel. The nominees are voted for by MTV viewers, and among those vying for the metalware in the Best Male Artist category are Latin pin-up Ricky Martin, George Michael and Robbie Williams, while Geri Halliwell, Whitney Houston, Madonna and Britney Spears battle it out for the Best Female award. There are also gongs up for grabs for the Best Hip Hop Act (the Beastie Boys and Will Smith have been nominated), Best Breakthrough (boy band Westlife, who are managed by Keating, and actress-turned-singer Jennifer Lopez are among the runners) and Best Video (Icelandic eccentric Björk has been shortlisted for All Is Full of Love). The nominees certainly reflect the broad-minded philosophy of the channel, as does the eclectic line-up of performers; with teen popster Britney Spears, shock rocker Marilyn Manson, British funk outfit Jamiroquai and home favourites The Corrs (pictured) sharing the bill, there's something to suit most tastes.

MTV, Thursday 11th, 8.00pm

What do All About Eve, Breakfast at Tiffany's and The Goodbye Girl have in common, apart from the fact that they all won at least one Academy Award? Answer – they are all among the favourite films of a well-known TV star, whose name finds its way into the title of Sky Cinema's themed day, Dale Winton and his Magnificent Obsession. Oh yes, another of Dale's favourites is the 1954 film Magnificent Obsession, starring Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson. And another is Written on the Wind, also starring Rock Hudson, which offers a further clue to Dale's particular enthusiasms. Dale knows his films. He was born into showbiz after all, and even named after a TV star – Dale Robertson of the Fifties show Tales of Wells Fargo. Dale's mum was Sheree Winton, a busty blonde starlet once billed as Britain's answer to Jayne Mansfield. Her advice to her only son was, 'Dignity at all times, Dale,' which he tries to remember whenever he is quizzed about his private life. 'I never discuss what I like to do in bed or who I like to sleep with, there's no dignity in that,' he says. 'And when you lose your dignity you lose your audience. People can assume what they like. Actually, whatever my sexual denomination, I virtually live the life of a nun. But I'm lucky because my friends are everything.'

Sky Cinema, Sunday 28th, from 2.00pm

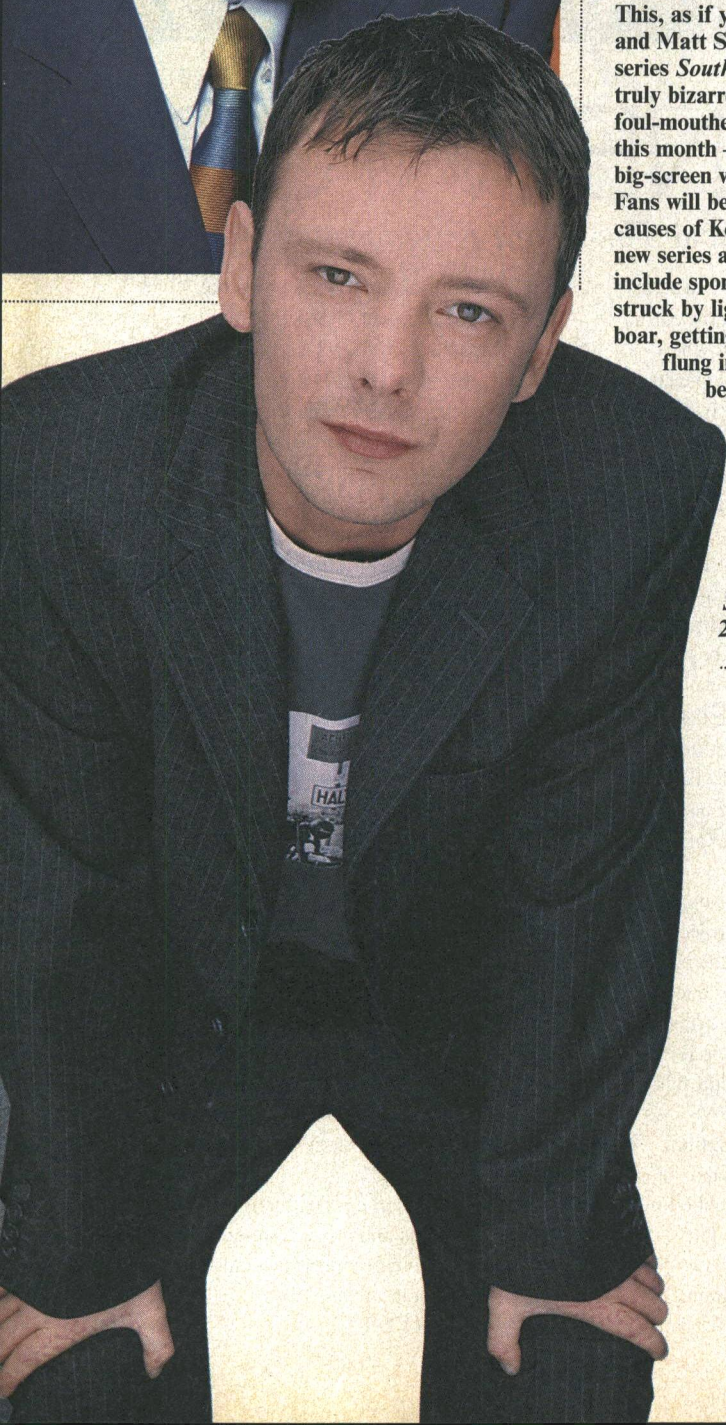

The Big Breakfast's Johnny Vaughan, it has sometimes been suggested, is the Jonathan Ross of the late Nineties. And the comparison becomes even more apt with Vaughan's latest project, his own film programme, The Johnny Vaughan Film Show, on which he will discuss new releases and interview movie stars. To the chagrin of The Big Breakfast fans, Vaughan recently announced that he is to leave the show when his contract expires next year. He says he is eager to explore new possibilities, and indeed has already co-written a sitcom for the BBC – provisionally titled Horrible – with his close friend, Dave Allen's son, Ed. Whatever he does, the chances are we'll be seeing a lot more of him on screen. Endearingly, Vaughan admits that he loves being on television. Once, when he was already a presenter, he took part in a pitch invasion at Stamford Bridge, after his beloved Chelsea had beaten Wolves. He was seen on Match of the Day being pulled by stewards off Glenn Hoddle's back. 'And I got so excited by the fact that I was on telly,' he recalls. 'My friends were going, "But you're on telly every week." And I was saying, "Yeah, but telly!"'

animated mayhem

Just to recap, Stan is the one in a bobble-hat; Kyle is the smart, Jewish one; Cartman is the fat, obnoxious one; and Kenny is the one in the anorak, who suffers a horrible death in every episode. This, as if you didn't know, is Trey Parker and Matt Stone's anarchic animated series South Park, which chronicles the truly bizarre adventures of a bunch of foul-mouthed eight-year-olds, and returns this month – following the success of the big-screen version – for a third series. Fans will be delighted to hear that the causes of Kenny's multiple deaths in the new series are as outlandish as ever. They include spontaneous combustion, being struck by lightning, being mauled by a boar, getting caught in a power saw and flung into a box of rusty nails, and being crushed by a succubus (don't ask). And just to further whet your appetite, the titles of forthcoming episodes include Sexual Harassment Panda and Two Guys Naked in a Hot Tub. You have been warned.
Sky One, from Sunday 21st, 11.00pm

Doug Hefferman is a parcel delivery man in Queens, New York. He and his friends have modest ambitions, like owning a wide-screen TV set. So when Doug's wife Carrie surprises him with a set, he becomes the envy of the neighbourhood. Unfortunately, paradise is sullied when his recently widowed father-in-law moves in. Such is the simple premise for King of Queens. It stars Kevin James, formerly a regular on the hit CBS comedy Everybody Loves Raymond, and reports from the other side of the Atlantic suggest that it is, at least sporadically, very funny.

Paramount Comedy Channel, from Tuesday 9th, 8.30pm

It is always enlightening to ask an actor to name his heroes, and John Simm's include David Thewlis, Ian Hart and the marginally more famous Robert De Niro. In other words, men who bring an edgy intensity to their craft. That is what Simm does, too, and he first burst to prominence as a delinquent who murdered his landlady in Jimmy McGovern's Cracker. However, what really put him on the map was his electric performance in another powerful McGovern drama, The Lakes. He played Danny Kavanagh, a drifter who gets a job in the Lake District as a hotel kitchen porter, and is framed for the accidental drowning of four schoolgirls. In The Lakes, Simm played a Liverpudlian. He actually comes from the small town of Nelson, outside Manchester, but was attracted to the part because he had always wanted to play a Scouser. 'I've got this romantic thing in my head about Liverpool, and adored The Beatles from an early age,' he explains. Unfortunately, he was not happy about the direction the second series of The Lakes took. Simm thought it unsubtle and was sorely disappointed that another of his heroes, McGovern, handed over to other – and, in Simm's opinion, lesser – writers. 'I got this feeling that after the first series they just wanted money. I thought, "Of all things to * up!"' Simm gets fired up just thinking about it. And it is this fire that helps to make him such a captivating young actor.

Marvel at goblins, trolls and giants in Sky Premier's ten part fantasy drama

A fairy tale FROM NEW YORK

Watch out for the fantastical The Tenth Kingdom next year

TRY to imagine a fairy tale place where trolls, giants and goblins stalk the earth. Picture please, a fantasy world where heroines are cursed by wicked Queens and wake up to find their hair is 45ft long. Enjoy a love story that revolves around a heroine and a hero who is part-man, part-wolf; a hero who, as a result, can't decide whether to marry his love or eat her.

When you do all the above, you will have entered the domain of The Tenth Kingdom, an extraordinary ten-part fantasy drama that has just finished filming both at Pinewood Studios and at locations in Alsace, Germany, the UK and New York.

Due to be televised on Sky Premier in the UK and on NBC in the States early in 2000, the £26 million drama – which is Tolkien, Narnia and every fairy tale that beguiled you as a child rolled into one – represents one of the most ambitious and expensive drama projects ever undertaken.

'Scale wise, it was both daunting and thrilling,' says screenwriter Simon Moore, whose other projects have included the hugely successful adaptation of Gulliver's Travels and who now also co-produces The Tenth Kingdom. 'To have received backing for a project this ambitious was like a fairy tale in itself. To see it all coming together over the months has been very exciting.'

During the six-month shoot, Moore's script has been brought to life with the help of thousands of extras, a panoply of special effects and a make-up and costume department that has cornered the market in prosthetic trolls ears and noses. The 45-foot wig worn during one episode of the drama by the heroine Virginia, played by Kimberly Williams cost £8000 and took eight weeks to make.

'When I wore it, it had to be supported on a harness because it would have been far too heavy to wear,' the actress, who also starred in The Father of the Bride with Steve Martin, explains. 'I had to wear it during scenes when I was in an enchanted forest and as I walked it collected twigs and leaves. It was like a nature study experiment.'

Other actors in the drama include American comedian and actor John Larroquette, who plays Virginia's father. The story, described by Simon Moore as 'a fairy tale for adults', revolves around what happens when the duo, who live in modern day New York, become marooned in a parallel universe known as the Nine Magic Kingdoms.

In the quest to return to the their old lives they become embroiled in battles with trolls, a wicked Queen (played by Dianne Wiest) intent on launching a coup for power, and a Huntsman (played by Rutger Hauer) whose arrow never misses its target. They are joined on their travels by Prince Wendell (transformed by the Wicked Queen into a Golden Retriever) and Wolf (played by Scott Cohen), who battles against his lupine instincts to become a worthy suitor.

'Ultimately,' says Simon Moore, 'The Tenth Kingdom is about a magical journey in which the characters learn about themselves, grow and change. No one at the end of the story is quite who they were at the beginning.'

Along the journey, of course, there are extraordinary thrills and lots of humour,' Moore says. In other words, the entire project seems likely to be an enormous amount of fun.

Eyes down for the BIG National Code & Number Changes

The National Code and Number Changes are a BIG reorganisation of the UK's telephone numbering system.

Increased demand for phone numbers, for example for mobile phones and Internet access, means that the UK is running short of new numbers. The changes will create a Code Family which will allow phone users to easily identify the type of call they are making, and at what rate they will be charged, together with ensuring we have plenty of new numbers in store for the future.

It is now possible to call any of the areas in the table opposite using the new codes and local numbers. When dialling locally within the 6 areas, continue to use existing local numbers until 22 April 2000. Old codes and local numbers will also continue to work for a short 'changeover period'. The changes will only affect the numbers dialled - not the cost of the call!

By April 2001 all old and new numbers for the following services will also change; mobile/pager codes will begin 07, special rate codes will begin 08 and premium rate codes will begin 09.

For further information on the changes visit our web site or call Customer Services.

FROM WEDNESDAY

NEVER in the history of Hollywood have so many top movie executives 'bugged out'. But then the stakes were high last autumn, when newcomers DreamWorks went head-to-head with the big daddy of animated film by announcing that they were releasing Antz a month before Disney's A Bug's Life in the run-up to the all-important Christmas season. Former Disney supremo Jeffrey Katzenberg – now part of DreamWorks, the outfit he set up with Steven Spielberg and David Geffen, co-producers of Antz with Pacific Data Images (PDI) – laughed off accusations that he'd poached the story from his former paymasters. The story goes that the idea for the movie dates back to a brainstorming session at PDI in 1991. Four years later the idea was pitched to DreamWorks.

A bitter behind-the-screens war broke out between DreamWorks and Disney, but fears that either film would be a flop were unfounded; there was more than enough room for two animated insect epics at the box office. As one industry expert put it: 'If the tale is a good one and the script has quality ... it will make money.'

Antz tells the tale of Z-4195 (brilliantly voiced by Woody Allen), a worker ant striving to reconcile his own individuality with the communal work ethic of the ant colony. Sharon Stone voices Z's beautiful love interest, Princess Bala, betrothed to the egomaniacal General Mandible (Gene Hackman), but equally tired of her position in the colony, until she meets Z while slumming it in a workers' bar.

Craving adventure Z decides to swap places with his pal Weaver (Sylvester Stallone), a warrior ant, and is sent into battle. Z emerges as the unlikely and unwitting war hero, wins Princess Bala's heart and flees the colony with her, in search of Insectopia – a fabled paradise which turns out to be a picnic site in a park.

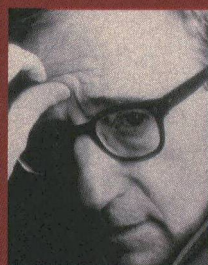

Antz is a giant leap forward in the animation business; using software created by PDI, the movie broke new ground. Co-director Tim Johnson said:

'Computers are still an incredibly untapped resource for artistic expression, and computer generation as a genre has only just begun to be explored on the big screen. We are not trying to duplicate reality or to copy traditional two-dimensional animation. It is simply that the computer permits the characters and the camera to move in three-dimensional space, which then allows the viewer to be drawn into the story that much more.'

The creative process for an animated film begins with the storyboard. Johnson says: 'The process we used for storyboarding the movie was the same process that was developed back in 1929 with wads of paper, pencils, pins and bulletin boards. So, even though Antz uses state-of-the-art technology, the storyboards remain the same as on the old classics. Nobody has come up with a better technological idea for that.'

The film started with the plot being put into three acts, which were then broken down into dozens of sequences. Each sequence is then broken down into scores of shots, each represented by one or more storyboard. There are approximately 1200 shots in Antz, taken from 5000 storyboard panels. The panels were then systematically scanned into a computer and edited together.

Providing the vocal colour! Above from top: Woody Allen supplied the voice of Z, Sharon Stone lent her vocal talents to Princess Bala, and Sylvester Stallone voiced the part of Weaver

But the story is not complete until the addition of the soundtrack. Allen, Hackman, Stone and Stallone were supported by an army of Hollywood's finest – Dan Aykroyd, Anne Bancroft, Danny Glover, Jennifer Lopez and Christopher Walken. Producer Brad Lewis commented: 'There was such a great buzz working with them all, watching them bring their own different personalities to the characters, in particular Woody Allen, who had a lot of personal input into Z. They all had to act into a microphone and so they relied on our guidance. But it was amazing to see how quickly and easily they were able to experiment and try things in a different way.'

The role of Z was actually written for Allen, and co-director Johnson says, 'He approached the whole thing the way he would approach a concert hall gig – with the same energy, wit and sophistication his fans have come to expect of him. Apart from that fact, one of his stand-up comedy stories is about his pet ant, Spot. You knew he had a soft spot, so to speak, for insects.'

With the soundtrack in place the film comes to life;

the animation is mesmerising, the dialogue as sharp as a warrior ant's mandible, the characters wonderfully warm and identifiable – which is especially impressive given their computer-created origins – and the visualisation of the ant colony astonishingly complex.

It may be a bug's life for some, but it's certainly not at DreamWorks, where they've started talking about Antz 2.

With their emotionally charged stories and great characters, it's no wonder television's costume dramas are so popular. As ITV2 shows a week of classics, Hilary Bonner delves in to the timeless tales of poverty, passion and intrigue

Bodice-ripping yarns

THE appeal of the classic British costume drama is everlasting. Nowadays, many productions are put together with American money. We make 'em, the Americans lap 'em up. They look wonderful, the characters jump off the screen at you, the stories are superbly and powerfully told, and the themes often contrive to be as controversial and emotive as when they were first committed to paper.

None the less, it seems incredible that among the biggest draws in modern television and cinema are the 19th-century works of three daughters of an English clergyman, who led stupefyingly sheltered lives, were accorded little acclaim and died tragically young.

From the birth of cinema, the works of the Brontë sisters have captivated film-makers and film-goers alike.

ITV2 kicks off a bonanza classics week with the latest telly version of Charlotte Brontë's most famous and most filmed novel, Jane Eyre, starring Samantha Morton as Jane and Ciarán Hinds as Rochester.

Jane Eyre was first made into a film, silent of course, in 1914. There have been five other major films of the novel, including the 1944 version starring Orson Welles as Edward Rochester and Joan Fontaine as Jane, and the most recent Hollywood extravaganza, from 1996, featuring William Hurt and Charlotte Gainsbourg. There was even a 1952 Indian version of this most English of novels.

Previous TV productions have seen George C Scott and Susannah York in the starring roles, from 1970, and one starring former James Bond actor Timothy Dalton and Zelah Clarke in 1983.

The story of Jane Eyre is loosely based on Charlotte Brontë's own desperately unhappy life. Jane Eyre grows up in a miserable charity school, unloved and ill cared for, while Charlotte and three of her sisters (there were originally five Brontë girls) were sent by their widowed father – a strict disciplinarian – to a grim, cruel school for the children of clergy, where, in fact, two of them died.

But, ultimately, Jane had her great romance with Mr Rochester and Jane Eyre has a happy ending, which is where Charlotte's magical imagination displays itself, because there was never any real romance in her life. She was unhappy with her loveless marriage to the Rev A B Nicholls when she died of pneumonia in 1885, aged 39.

Emily Brontë's novel Wuthering Heights is one of the most turbulent and passionate books in literature. Indeed, she was at one time insulted by the claim, in male-orientated critical circles, that no woman who had led such a restricted life could have written a novel like it, and that it was actually the work of her brother.

Not true, of course, but it was only years after their death that the Brontë sisters were recognised as great novelists, and it is ironic that they are now so revered a century and a half after their deaths.

Wuthering Heights has a similarly grand screen history to Jane Eyre. The latest TV version stars Orla Brady as Cathy Earnshaw and Robert Cavanaugh as Heathcliff. It was first made into a silent film in 1920, since then there have been five other major films, including an adaptation directed by the great Luis Buñuel in 1954 and an acclaimed French version in 1985.

The works of the Brontë sisters, like Jane Austen, attract the highest calibre of actors. Laurence Olivier starred as Heathcliff and Merle Oberon as Cathy in the 1939 version of the film, and Ralph Fiennes and Juliette Binoche took the starring roles in 1992.

Another of the ITV2 classics is Laurie Lee's Cider with Rosie, starring Juliet Stevenson as Laurie's mother, Annie. The screenplay was adapted by Rumpole of the Bailey creator John Mortimer and also features John's daughter, Emily, as Miss Flynn.

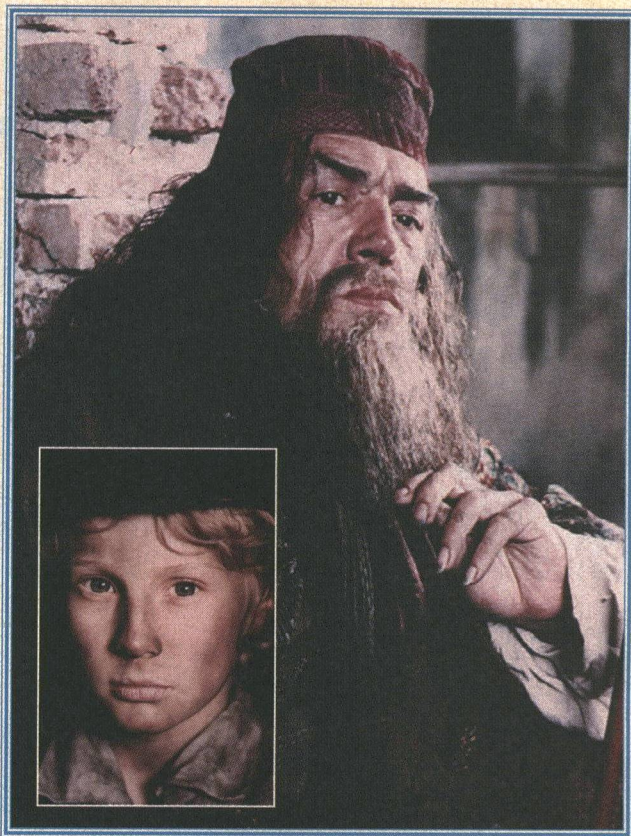

Juliet spent several years as a leading actress with the Royal Shakespeare Company before finding wider recognition with films such as Truly Madly Deeply and television's The Politician's Wife. Yet she regards playing Annie as one of the high spots of her career. 'Cider with Rosie is such a truly beautiful book,' she says. 'When we were filming it, Laurie's widow, Cathy, and daughter, Jessie, gave us boxes of letters from him which Annie had kept throughout her life. She made scrapbooks about him, too, which we were also loaned, and this made it all the more real.'

Producer Adrian Bate has no doubts about the secret of Cider with Rosie's lasting appeal and the success of its screen adaptation: 'It is a work of high drama and a cracking good yarn.'

'For more than 40 years, millions of people have grown up with the book enjoying its beauty and nostalgia,' he says. 'But Laurie's village was not all warm summer evenings and fumbling sexuality. It came into contact with murder, rape, suicide and depression.'

In fact, Cider with Rosie focuses on aspects of life that are still relevant and always will be. The great authors all have this quality of presenting issues and emotions that are timeless, none more so than Charles Dickens.

Also on ITV2 (starting Wednesday 1 December) is the latest version of Oliver Twist, dramatised by Alan Bleasdale, starring Sam Smith as Oliver and Robert Lindsay as Fagin. Dickens's novel, about the orphan who famously asked for more, tackles head-on problems that are as important today as they were when he was alive – poverty, homelessness, alcoholism and violence. In particular, the scene when the seedy Bill Sikes rapes and murders Nancy is every bit as horrific and unforgettable as anything created by a hard-hitting modern writer.

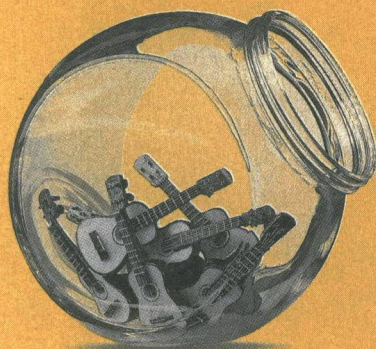

Says producer Keith Thomson: 'Dickens remains arguably the best novelist in the English language. He is a great story teller, his characters are wonderfully larger than life and his books are timeless. That is why they last.'

Moll Flanders, also in the ITV2 schedule, starring Alex Kingston in the title role and written by Robinson Crusoe author Daniel Defoe, is among the bawdiest of classics and also, at times, the funniest.

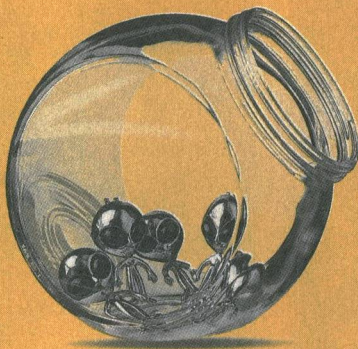

It is best described by giving it its full title from its first publication in 1722: The Fortunes and Misfortunes of the Famous Moll Flanders, who, we are told, 'was born at Newgate, and during a Life of Continued Variety for Threescore Years, besides her childhood, was Twelve Year a Whore, five times a Wife (whereof once to her own Brother), Twelve Year a Thief, Eight Year a Transported felon in Virginia, at last grew rich, liv'd Honest and died a Penitent.'

Now, that's what you call a story. No wonder the classics live on ...

ANIMAL ATTRACTION

Vet Trude Mostue has gained quite a following since her TV debut two years ago – becoming Norway's biggest export since the Christmas tree! Interview: Jane Oddy

WHEN trainee vet Trude Mostue wept openly in front of the cameras after finding out she had failed her Finals in the first series of Vets' School two years ago, British audiences took her instantly to their hearts.

Not only was it a show that addressed the nation's love of animals but it provided the viewers with a snapshot of real life and no one seemed more real than Trude – although her appeal was partly due to being a pretty, scatty Scandinavian with big blue eyes.

But 31-year-old Trude is no blonde bimbo and she isn't crying these days. She sailed through her retakes and is now a qualified vet, docusoap star and TV personality.

She knew she had arrived last month when she split up from her boyfriend Patrick Evans and the story was splashed all over the tabloids: 'Poor Patrick! All the papers turned up on his doorstep for his story and I thought, "Wow! I'm public interest now!"'

There is no denying that Trude is one of the main attractions in the current series of the follow-up Vets in Practice, which shows her at work at Longleat Safari Park in Wiltshire, home to the Marquess of Bath and his lions.

She also filmed another show in Africa this year called Vets in the Wild, has written a couple of books and presents a new daytime TV show, Vets to the Rescue, which began last month and is set around Chester Zoo.

Trude seems comfortable being Norway's biggest export since the Christmas tree but says that the downside of fame is that she has been targeted by a stalker: 'It really spooked me. Now he's learning Norwegian so he thinks he can get to me in that way.'

After Jill Dando's murder she felt compelled to report it to the police and no longer gets any letters: 'It really scared me and I felt very vulnerable for ages but I've been looked after. The BBC are very professional.'

It is easy for Trude to forget her fame because she still carries on her 9-5 job as a vet, although she is torn about exactly which career path to follow.

In between filming, she spends one day a week at Longleat, and another two in a practice outside Bristol where she treats domestic pets: 'I want to keep up my surgical skills but it's difficult to juggle the two. There has to be a point where I make a choice but I don't know what to do,' she sighs.

Her path to TV fame has been unconventional. She grew up in a town just outside Oslo and concentrated on her passion for animals when she couldn't become a ballet dancer.

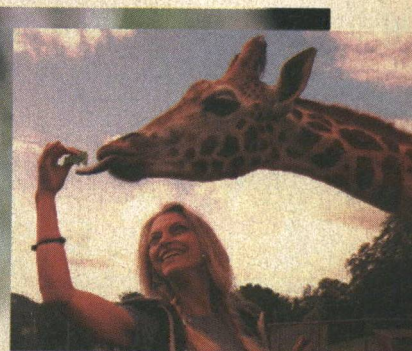

She applied to Oslo Veterinary School but ended up studying at Bristol University eight years ago: 'They only take 40 students a year in Oslo so they send you to England. My English was terrible so it was even more of a challenge. That's why I did it.'

Trude accepts that trait in her personality and it seems that her fierce ambition is probably why the path of true love has not yet run smooth for her.

During her stint with Vets' School she was seeing a sports journalist called Hector Taylor but they split after 18 months because she was based in Bristol and he in Southampton.

In the recent Vets in Practice, viewers were introduced to 38-year-old Patrick. That relationship, too, has fallen victim to Trude's career trajectory and she recently moved out of his flat in Bristol: 'We speak every day and he's a lovely man. We just feel the timing is not right. I've got so many things on and it's not fair to drag someone else into it.' She adds: 'I do want to get married but not yet. I feel I've got so much more to do before I settle down. I'm going to have to watch myself though; suddenly I'll realise I'm 40 and I've forgotten to get married and have kids!'

SHOULD the chairman, Jerry Block, walk in right now, he'd do his nut. For starters, the new office temp is curled up on his squashy living-room sofa, sipping coffee and gossiping for Britain. More to the point, she isn't in the office where she belongs.

Zena Young, new to Harchester United FC, just smiles sexily, removes her strappy gold-sandalled feet from the sofa, tries in vain to look demure and carries on chirruping about anything – so long as it's not football. She's not exactly the world's expert on the subject. Still, get her in the bar after a match and she'll equal the boys pint-for-pint, go clubbing until 5am and bounce into the office four hours later – still chirruping!

Which sort of sums up the divine Danielle Brown, who plays Zena, a new signing to Sky One's phenomenally successful soccer

DIVA PITCH

If an injury hadn't cut short Jane Leeves's career as a ballet dancer, we may never have had the chance to laugh along at her antics as daffy Daphne Moon on Frasier.

Words: Eirik Knutzen

Leeves 'em laughing

I WANTED to be the big swan up front,' recalls Frasier star Jane Leeves, who as an 18-year-old dancer had already been invited to join the London Festival Ballet. The dream evaporated one day as she was doing stretching exercises before a class. Her foot wedged between the barre and the wall and she suddenly felt the agonising pain of tendons ripping in her ankle. The doctors at the hospital shook their heads. There was nothing they could do; the ankle would never support a prima ballerina. 'I wasn't totally devastated because I thought I could make it as an actress within a couple of years,' explains the earthy actress, who was raised in East Grinstead. With modest financial support from home, she started knocking on producers' doors in London. Her first paying job, besides a handful of modelling gigs and dancing in industrial shows, was a short stint on The Benny Hill Show playing inept secretaries and stupid maids. 'I only worked with Benny for a few days,' the 37-year-old explains. 'Every scene I did was with him ... I thought he was a very strange, lonely and quiet man who didn't seem to have any family or friends to speak of. He kept himself very isolated ... I don't think anybody ever found out what kind of man he really was.'

In 1984, Leeves went to live with a dancer friend in Los Angeles. 'Looking back, it was a very brave thing to do,' she says, laughing. 'I had no connections and only a few dollars, but I thought I was invincible and the world was my oyster. Thank goodness I did it, because it enabled me to eventually end up doing exactly what I wanted soap Dream Team, back for a twice weekly, 64-episode third season. Nineteen years old, sassy, sharp and vivacious, she's still trying to get to grips with the rudiments of the sport.

Although it's not as if she doesn't have excellent help close to hand. Her boyfriend is 23-year-old Derby County centre forward and Jamaican international Deon Burton; she and her big sister, Spice Girl Mel G, were virtually force-fed football via TV by their Leeds United-mad father, Martin; and then there's Posh Spice's other half, David Beckham ...

'I just thought they kicked a ball around but I'm getting into it now and starting to understand about defence,' confesses Danielle, 'although I admit to driving my boyfriend mad because I find it all really confusing.'

Not so confusing and much easier to get to grips with is, er, drinking. 'My mum and all my friends say

I can drink a lot and hold it down, plus, I can mix them and it doesn't bother me the next day. I drink everything. I love champagne, I think it's the best sort of drunkenness you can get. I don't really like lager, apart from the odd Budweiser with lime when it's hot.'

And the late nights? 'I've just moved into a flat in north London with two friends. I'd been given a karaoke machine and the other night we were all fighting for the mike. I got to bed at about 5am and I'm planning on going out partying all weekend.'

Not that living north of the river will allow her any more minutes of beauty sleep because the fictitious Midlands team have now left leafy Hertfordshire. The luvvie squad used to film at Watford before live footage from FA and Premier League games was digitally blended in. Now they have re-located south to the larger stadium of second division Millwall.

The swanky country mansion of the team's bullish millionaire chairman, Jerry Block (played by Michael Melia), is in fact a nearby warehouse off the Old Kent Road converted into studios.

Danielle is the biggest sport around when it comes to being compared with her famous sister. But what with a stint on the Yorkshire soap Emmerdale, co-presenting Channel 4's The Big Breakfast for a week, and her new gig on Dream Team, it won't be long before her own career really kicks in.

When asked which team she supports, Danielle giggles good-naturedly. 'Leeds. Well, I support Derby as well, but Leeds really. Boyfriends come and go don't they, but you can't switch your teams.'

to do. But at the time, I was motivated by blind ambition, youth and stupidity.'

Leeves discovered she had a natural flair for comedy and honed her talents on the music industry sitcom Throb, Murphy Brown – a series revolving around a TV news show – and on her guest appearances on Seinfeld.

'Seinfeld was an extraordinary opportunity, especially the episode in which I played Marla, a virgin dating Jerry,' Leeves giggles. 'All the odds are stacked against them, including Elaine, who spots John F Kennedy Jr at the health club. But instead of Elaine getting a date with JFK Jr, Marla is deflowered by him.'

But her big break came in 1993, when she was cast as Daphne Moon in the hugely popular Cheers spin-off Frasier. She has earned two Emmy Award nominations for her work as the Manchester-born physical therapist for Frasier's father, Martin, who is played by genuine Mancunian John Mahoney.

In Frasier there was much debate about the form of British accent given to Daphne: 'We tried a number of dialects, including cockney, and finally settled on a very soft Mancunian – because it's a fairly easy working-class accent for Americans to understand.'

A warm, unpretentious woman who adores children, Leeves almost adopted as a single mother about six years ago. 'But John [Mahoney] talked me out of it, claiming I would be married within a year or so,' she laughs. 'I thought he was crazy, but sure enough, I met Marshall [Cohen] at a Christmas party on the Paramount Studios lot where Frasier is taped. We were married at a civil ceremony in Los Angeles just for the paperwork, then at a church wedding in England because I wanted my father to walk me down the aisle.'

Meanwhile, Daphne may be making wedding plans of her own in the new season set to air in the States.

These will probably involve her lawyer fiancé Donny (Saul Rubinek).

But there could be changes, including Daphne finally taking Niles (David Hyde Pierce) seriously.

'Either way, the whole cast is campaigning to shoot the wedding, if there is one, in England.'

'Then we could finally meet Daphne's family.'

TUBE TALES
FRIDAY 19TH, 9.00PM

'I JUST WONDERED WHETHER I COULD GET AWAY WITH IT'

DENISE VAN OUTEN does not embarrass easily. But for her film debut, she could not hide her blushes. She had to perform a ten-minute sequence in which her character arouses a stranger on the London Underground.

Her role in this month's Sky Premier offering of Tube Tales is the most controversial of several short films all set on the London Underground and directed by British stars such as Ewan McGregor, Jude Law and Bob Hoskins.

Denise, 25, who has always been open-minded about sexual matters, was shocked at the frankness of the script.

'I thought, "Hold on – is this a bit too naughty?"' she says. 'I just wondered whether I could get away with it.'

'It is one thing being natural about sex, it is quite another having to pretend to be sexy in front of a camera. But, thankfully, my blushes were spared by an auburn wig and the fact that I can play the whole scene as another character.'

Her offering, entitled Horny and directed by Stephen Hopkins, who was at the helm of last year's sci-fi blockbuster Lost in Space, is the most eye-catching short film in the 90-minute anthology.

'My girl gets onto the tube and everyone is instantly aware of her, because she is attractive,' says Denise. 'She is drawing attention to herself, without realising it. A guy, played by Tom Bell, pays far too much leery attention every time the doors open and shut, with her skirt blowing up. She becomes annoyed at him ogling so much and thinks he is trying to take advantage.'

'She decides to turn the tables by openly flirting. She lifts her skirt, pretends to get hot and shows a lot of cleavage. In the end, he gets turned on and has to get off the tube.'

Bawdy former Big Breakfast presenter Denise Van Outen delights in shocking people. And in this month's premiere of the anthology film Tube Tales, she is at her most outrageous yet.

Words: Garth Pearce

'I wanted to show the power that some women can have to use their sexuality to turn the tables on men. It is something I do quite often myself – though not on the Underground.'

Denise is enjoying a soaring career since she quit in January as Johnny Vaughan's co-presenter on Channel 4's The Big Breakfast. But, on meeting her, it is soon obvious that her success comes partly by her pulling off a deft sleight of hand between image and reality.

The image is all veneer: the looks, the street-smart chat – she's an Essex Girl with more front than Southend. She has a pop star boyfriend – Jamiroquai front man Jay Kay – and has made an art form of being loud and bawdy.

The real Denise is rather different. She has had a single-minded ambition to succeed since leaving school at 16. She is totally committed to her work and draws from her skills in accounting to run her own business. She clearly knows the difference between talking herself up as a woman who will say and do anything, and having the clear head needed to take advantage if ever anyone is fooled into thinking she's a brainless bimbo.

She gives a perfect example of how her mind works: 'I was trying to buy a bikini last summer and could not find anything I really liked,' she says. 'So I've designed my own, all at reasonable prices, because I am a high street shopping chick at heart. I've launched them at Top Shop.'

'Ever since I was a kid and dressed up my Sindy dolls, I've wanted to design fashion. I also like to think that my breasts – which are natural and 100 per cent real – break down all language and business barriers. My motto is: Never go somewhere and leave quietly.'

When pressed, she admits: 'Okay, I am good at business. I am running my own production company and have my own clothing range. I was always taught that anything is possible, but know that it only comes with very hard work.'

But even Denise has been surprised by her success on film. She has starred in another movie, Love, Honour and Obedience, alongside some of Britain's best, including Ray Winstone, Kathy Burke, and Jude Law.

Denise has always had a bold approach to work, since training at the Sylvia Young Theatre School in London, alongside Dani Behr and Baby Spice, Emma Bunton. She worked in the stage musical Les Miserables and landed a job as the weather girl on The Big Breakfast. It eventually led to the opportunity to co-host the show.

She has hungrily seized every chance since, like the ITV sitcom Babes in the Wood and her late-night Channel 4 show Something for the Weekend.

'I don't know what the future holds,' she says. 'But I'm looking forward to it.'

Tube Tales comprises nine stories set on the London Underground. A remarkable line-up of directors and stars took part in the project, which is the result of a competition Time Out ran in 1998, inviting readers to submit their stories of travelling on the tube. Denise van Outen stars in Horny; the other tales are as follows:

Mr Cool A man is trapped on a train to nowhere. It stars Trainspotting's Kelly MacDonald, and Jason Flemyng and Dexter Fletcher from Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels.

Grasshopper Two inspectors close in on a suspected fare dodger, but what follows is a bizarre case of mistaken identity.

My Father, the Liar A boy and his father witness an incident, which results in the father lying to his son to protect him. Ray Winstone stars and Bob Hoskins directs.

Bone A musician's fantasy world is directed by Ewan McGregor.

Mouth. An attractive, well-groomed woman is full of surprises.

A Bird in the Hand. Jude Law, the star of Wilde, Gattaca and eXistenZ, directs this tale about the fate of a lost bird.

Rosebud. A daughter becomes separated from her mother – played by The Mummy's Rachel Weisz.

Steal Away. Two thieves are surprised when they escape onto an unused platform.

THE TUBE MAKES A COMEBACK ...

This month the cult Eighties music show The Tube gets a Nineties facelift as Sky broadcasts a live three-hour special – Apocalypse Tube. Nick Griffiths reports on the forthcoming music fest (which may include Oasis!)

SOMEWHERE between Thatcher and the fall of the Berlin Wall in the Eighties came Channel 4's The Tube. Just to remind us, and to celebrate director Geoff Wonfor's 50th birthday, The Tube is back for a three-hour live special, Apocalypse Tube, capping off the millennium.

The Tube ran for five series from 1982 and featured practically every band the Eighties threw up; launched the likes of Frankie Goes to Hollywood and Fine Young Cannibals; and provided debut British television appearances for fledgling transatlantic megastars such as REM and Madonna (unappreciative audience members threw pie crusts at her).

Comedians too were blooded: French and Saunders; Ade Edmonson and Rik Mayall; Vic Reeves and Bob Mortimer – sat in a bath of mud. 'I don't think you'd get Robbie Coltrane to play a bouncer outside a Newcastle wine bar these days,' says Wonfor, with some glee.

Having gone on to direct music programmes such as The White Room and The Beatles Anthology, Wonfor returns to The Tube partly because his original producer, Malcolm Gerrie (who executive-produces this special), decided that bringing the show back would make the perfect birthday present for him. Apocalypse Tube is a co-production between Sky and Channel 4, where it will air in the early hours of New Year's Day. Wonfor isn't supposed to name any of the bands that will perform – the information is embargoed.

Oasis? 'Yup', he says. So we can expect the cream of the music scene, and lesser knowns given valuable exposure.

Why is The Tube so fondly remembered? 'We were fortunate that the music was fantastic during those five years,' says Wonfor. 'And it made it different being filmed in Newcastle. People said the bands wouldn't come all that way, but they did. All of them. It helped The Tube's kudos that The Jam played their final live set on the first programme.' Plus, says Wonfor, 'presenters like Jools and Paula don't pop up very often.'

The Tube was presented by Jools Holland, then of the band

Squeeze, and a 22-year-old Paula Yates. The pair will appear in the special, reminiscing perhaps about the time Holland inadvertently used the f-word in a teaser for the programme shown during children's ITV.

The original presentation wasn't always polished. As Paula Yates says in a new book on the show, The Tube 'genuinely was good when it was good, but that was just by chance'. The style inspired a host of later entertainment shows, the nadir of those being The Word. Wonfor isn't keen on the link. 'The thing is that there's been nothing like The Tube since. Some have bordered on it but the sad fact is that there's been nothing to touch it, really. It's the most beautiful challenge to bring it back. I'm gagging to get going on it. I can't wait,' he says. 'I can't wait!' Neither can a lot of dewy-eyed nostalgics who grew up during the plastic Eighties.

Who says

RICHARD WILSON'S first reaction when he was offered the role that turned him into a TV superstar was to say no. He thought One Foot in the Grave's Victor Meldrew was far too old for him. The actor, now 63, was only in his early 50s at the time but Meldrew was already supposed to be a pensioner. 'I said, "Oh no, no, I'm not that age,"' he recalls.

But, at a glance, Richard Wilson already looked the part. Yet, ironically, he has always been a health enthusiast and his life still revolves around a daily fitness routine.

And when you study him more closely you see a lean athletic man without an ounce of fat on his 6ft frame. The bald head and the famous lived-in face are almost a kind of camouflage.

He has even brought out a keep-fit video that's all about exercising to music. And he works hard to keep his body in peak condition.

'I discovered a long time ago that if I exercise I feel better,' he says.

'I feel well and I have more energy, and that is all my aim is really – to feel well.'

He keeps a horse in the country which he rides whenever he has the time, and one of the great loves of his life is playing squash. He is known to be a mean competitor.

'If I don't play squash for a long time I feel sludgy. Yes, that's the word for it, sludgy, or clunged,' he says. 'I like to play squash three or four times a week and I have been doing so since I was in my 20s.'

'A lot of people say I must be barmy playing squash at 63, but I think that is nonsense. As long as I feel fit I will continue.'

'Anyway, my mental age is certainly not 63. For a long time it used to be 27. I think it has gone up to 38 now.'

'People are often affected by labels. At 50 you don't do that. At 60 you don't do that. At 70 you take it very easy.'

Victor Meldrew is the kind of retired man Richard Wilson would never become. The mean-spirited Meldrew is bored and uneasy with his life.

He feels he has little purpose – and that makes him tetchier than ever.

'Retirement is the time when there is a danger of becoming a vegetable,' says Richard. 'I think it is very encouraging that so many people of all ages find the antics of this old man funny. Of course actors never retire – if they can help it.'

Keeping busy and keeping fit is the secret of keeping young, according to Richard. Indeed, as he approaches normal retirement age his career is at its peak.

Regular exercise, he believes, is the key to his ability to continue coping with gruelling schedules. 'As you get older, it is easy to slow down,' he says. 'It becomes harder and harder to make yourself exercise and to stay fit – but you should do it.'

'I believe exercising jiggles the body about, keeps it all going.'

'I start every day doing exercises and I cannot have my breakfast until I have done so.'

'So I have this strange routine of putting it off and doing little bits and bobs, and then I realise I am getting hungrier and hungrier, and I think, well, this is silly, I have got to do the exercises and then I can eat – because you certainly can't do it the other way round.'

He keeps weights and exercise machines at home. 'On working days I usually only have time for ten minutes or so of stretching and press-ups,' he says. 'But I like to do a full half-hour workout.'

After breakfast, Richard takes his vitamin pills. 'A large vitamin C, a garlic pill, halibut oil and sometimes a multi-vitamin pill.' Two or three times a year he goes to a health farm.

He watches his diet. No butter. Granary bread. Plenty of fish. Lots of salads and fresh vegetables.

However, he insists that he is not obsessive about his health, and he does have his weaknesses. He likes a drink and has a passion for fine wine.

'I like a glass of wine to relax me at the end of the day,' he says. 'And if I have had a hard day's filming and I have a rest day the next day, then I will indulge in quite a lot of wine. It will be wine before my evening meal, wine during it, and wine afterwards.'

I'm old and grumpy?

He might have One Foot in the Grave as cantankerous codger Victor Meldrew, but Hilary Bonner discovers that, offscreen, actor Richard Wilson is a happy health enthusiast

Golden Cate

Filmdom's top actors and directors are queuing up to work with Cate Blanchett after marvelling at her tour-de-force performance in Elizabeth. But, she tells Garth Pearce, she doesn't want to become an 'acting machine'

CATE BLANCHETT had everything to prove. The unknown Australian actress was playing Elizabeth I, known as the Virgin Queen, for the Lahore-born Shekhar Kapur in a film about the English monarch. What's more, in this version, the Queen was no longer a virgin.

For Blanchett, 30, the pressure was clearly getting too much. When I first went to see her – at a splendid reconstruction of Elizabeth's coronation in York Minster, founded in the 7th century and doubling for 13th-century Westminster Abbey in London – she suddenly decided against talking about the role. A message was passed down: she couldn't get her mind and voice around describing what she was attempting to achieve.

It was more than a year later, in the less historic surroundings of London's Dorchester Hotel, that she finally consented to an audience. Gone are the long red wig and heavy brocade clothes. What remains is blue T-shirt and jeans and shoulder-length fair hair. There is also one important addition: she has won the BAFTA award – Britain's equivalent of the Oscar – for best actress.

Many sighed with relief when she won, perhaps reflecting that they were spared another emotional and cringe-making speech from Gwyneth Paltrow, who pipped the nominated Blanchett for an Academy Award for her performance in the rival period piece Shakespeare in Love.

That said, Blanchett has achieved great things on screen. And her lusty scenes with 29-year-old Joseph Fiennes, who plays her lover, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, have managed to rewrite history in a believable style. 'There was no firm evidence that Queen Elizabeth lost her virginity to him,' says Blanchett. 'But there is no evidence that she didn't. We have never claimed that it is historically accurate – whatever accuracy is. My take on it was that she had a very harrowing upbringing, so would have had loves and hates of her own.'

In the film, we meet her aged 21 in 1554, dancing in royal gardens. We leave her four years later, hardened by her lover's betrayal and wearing a mask of white make-up to declare to the court that she is married to no one but England. Blanchett did not look over her shoulder at past performances of the character, which include Flora Robson in Fire Over England in 1937, Bette Davis in The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex in 1939 and The Virgin Queen in 1955, and Glenda Jackson in BBC's Elizabeth R in 1971. 'What happened before did not really matter,' she says. 'I was not going to learn anything that would help me in what lay ahead. I had to find her independent spirit, a wicked sense of humour and youthful passions, which no film has focused on before.'

She has a crisp delivery. Even when I observe that she has enjoyed screen love affairs with both Joseph Fiennes and his more famous brother Ralph (in Oscar and Lucinda), she interrupts: 'Comparisons are odious. They are completely different people and different actors.' In what way? 'Ralph is complex, with an intense screen presence and wicked sense of humour. Joseph is incredibly beautiful to look at, a real trickster and very deadpan with the wind-ups.'

Blanchett grew up in Melbourne, one of three children raised by her mother after the death of her Texan father when she was ten. She attended the city's Methodist Ladies College: 'It gave me a love of music and performing,' she says. 'I played seven instruments at some point and it was one of those schools that taught you that girls can do anything. I directed plays when I was there and found it really stimulating.'

She was able to go directly from Sydney's National Institute of Dramatic Art into a string of stage plays, including a production of David Mamet's Oleanna, opposite Geoffrey Rush (an Oscar winner for Shine, he also appears in Elizabeth), who played a university lecturer accused by her character of sexual harassment. 'So where could I go to from there?' she asks. 'My standards were very high right away.'

She remained working in theatre until a debut film role in Bruce Beresford's Paradise Road, quickly followed by the comedy Thank God He Met Lizzie. Her agent sent Elizabeth director Kapur a promo tape on the very week he was appointed. He told me: 'She had a timelessness and a different kind of beauty. There was a translucence of the skin and paleness. I felt instinctively that she would be perfect, although I had never heard of her. Once we screen tested her, it was obvious that she was right.'

A right royal laugh! Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, (Joseph Fiennes) and Queen Elizabeth I (Cate Blanchett) enjoy a lighter moment in the acclaimed Elizabeth

FROM WEDNESDAY 17TH

If Blanchett's working trip to the other side of the world, to film in a succession of draughty English castles, came as a culture shock, then she did not admit it. She had also married screenwriter Andrew Upton only a few months before. 'It's not conducive to the gypsy life I lead, to have a husband,' she intones. 'Life has become very busy and we see each other when we can.'

Blanchett's career already looks set to follow a similar path to fellow Aussie Nicole Kidman. Earlier this year, she was back in historic costume, this time Victorian, as Lady Chiltern alongside Minnie Driver and Julianne Moore in Oscar Wilde's An Ideal Husband. She is currently starring in Four Weddings and a Funeral director Mike Newell's Pushing Tin, a black comedy set in the stressful world of air-traffic controllers, with John Cusack and Billy Bob Thornton.

There is also the forthcoming The Talented Mr Ripley, co-starring Gwyneth Paltrow and Matt Damon. Directed by Anthony (The English Patient) Minghella, the film gets its Stateside release later this year before arriving on British screens next year. 'The things I have ended up working on are not those I have really run after,' she says. 'I find myself in a really good position. But I am not an acting machine. I can only do so much.'

FILMS ON CA

He may have been christened Marion, but John Wayne was the ultimate movie tough guy. As Sky Cinema celebrates 'the Duke', Kim Newman saddles up to cast his eye over the screen legend's career.

Wayne's world

JOHN WAYNE got big early, though not before he paid his dues, and stayed big longer than any other Hollywood star. His first lead role (in a Western, naturally) was The Big Trail in 1930, but its box office disappointment exiled him to quickie B-features and serials – including an ill-advised stint as Singing Sandy, a musical cowboy – until 1939, when John Ford hauled him out of the posse to play the Ringo Kid in Stagecoach. That seminal oater made Wayne a major he-man action star, and he remained one throughout the Forties, Fifties, Sixties and well into the Seventies, managing a moving send-off in The Shootist in 1976, in which his gunslinger character is dying from cancer, the disease that actually claimed the Duke's life three years later.

For generations of filmgoers, there was no other real hero: Humphrey Bogart was cooler, Cary Grant had more range, James Stewart was more down-to-earth, Spencer Tracy a better actor and Gary Cooper better-looking. But Wayne, living down the fact he had been named Marion at birth, was the American masculine ideal.

In the Sixties, when he was making The Green Berets and sounding off about long-haired slackers, he was out of tune with the counterculture, but people continued to believe in him.

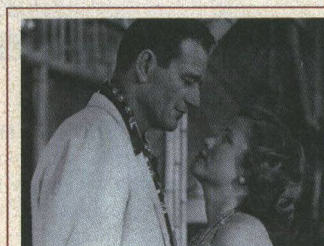

The Maoist French film director Jean-Luc Godard said that despite everything Wayne said and did off-screen to make himself a hate figure, he could be forgiven for the moment in The Searchers where he doesn't kill Natalie Wood but picks her up and says, 'Let's go home, Debbie'.

John Wayne the man was not the John Wayne of the movies. He criticised Vietnam protesters who refused to fight a war they thought was unjust, but was draft exempt during WWII because he was the father of four children. He fought his war on the movie screen and stuck it to Hitler and the Japanese in a series of gung-ho combat pictures with titles like The Flying Leathernecks. As a director-star, he turned out The Alamo and The Green Berets, embarrassing hymns to an America that never was and perhaps ought not to have been. And he made a lot of pictures that were the definition of run-of-the-mill product: Wake of the Red Witch, Blood Alley, North to Alaska.

But among all that boys' own stuff were many fine pictures. For John Ford he was the cleanest-cut of outlaws in Stagecoach but deepened as the central figure of the so-called Cavalry Trilogy (Fort Apache, She Wore a Yellow Ribbon, Rio Grande). Wayne delivered his most honest war film for Ford (They Were Expendable), his warmest romantic role (The Quiet Man), his best performance (The Searchers) and his most potent casting (The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance).

He won an Oscar for being fat and one-eyed in True Grit, but that was a lightweight performance; he is better in The Sands of Iwo Jima, for which he was only nominated, taking the island but being shot dead just as he relaxes with a smoke, making the same points as Tom Hanks in Saving Private Ryan but with a lot less fuss. There were hideous embarrassments – his mad Mongol in The Conqueror, the Centurion in The Greatest Story Ever Told – but you can do a lot worse than spend an afternoon with any one of dozens of his just-plain-hero movies: Reap the Wild Wind, Tall in the Saddle, Hondo. He was a great movie star, but also a great actor, at best when trying to conceal emotion: wiping a tear as he is presented with a retirement watch by his troop in She Wore a Yellow Ribbon, walking away into the desert in The Searchers, pulling himself together for one last gunfight in The Shootist.

John Wayne and Nancy Olson in the drama Big Jim McLain, a cinematic souvenir of the McCarthy era

BOBBY'S DAZZLER

Rob Lee has a new lease of life under Bobby Robson, reports David Alexander

ROB LEE of Newcastle could have been playing in the First Division for Fulham or his old club Charlton if Ruud Gullit had not left St James' Park at the end of August. The midfielder, once hailed as the best in England by Kevin Keegan, was so far from Gullit's plans that he did not have a squad number at the start of the season. Lee, who has 21 England caps, was close to moving back to his native London but managed to survive long enough to see Gullit's departure and is now back in the first team spotlight thanks to new manager Bobby Robson. Lee admits he was close to walking out during his dark days under Gullit and said: 'I almost left the club because of the manager. Now he's gone I hope I can get on with my career again.'

'The fans knew I didn't want to leave, they know I only want to play for Newcastle and that I love it here. The backing they gave me was tremendous.'

Lee added: 'Training is fun once more, I'm enjoying life again and I have not done that for some time.'

Everton are also resurgent after too many years on the slide, and this clash is set to be an explosive affair.

HIGH NOON

David Alexander previews the Old Firm derby, where the atmosphere will once again reach fever pitch

AFTER last season's infamous Old Firm game at Celtic Park, in which referee Hugh Dallas was struck by a missile in a game which shamed Scottish soccer, both sides will be hoping for a more peaceful encounter this month.

But with Rangers winning the domestic treble last season Celtic will be even more determined than ever to get one over their rivals.

Celtic midfielder Johan Mjällby (pictured) is desperate to set the record straight against Rangers. Mjällby said: 'I can't wait for the match so we can make up for last season. I don't want to see Rangers win the treble again because it was a very bad experience.

'If you play for Celtic you have to think this way and it is up to me and other players to make sure that it doesn't happen to us again.'

Rangers' Giovanni van Bronckhorst says the intense rivalry does not spill over between the players off the pitch. 'I am friendly with Henrik Larssen, Regi Blinker and Bobby Petta, but when I'm on the pitch, I give 100 per cent for Rangers.

'Rivalry is important in sport, but as we saw in the derby last May, the fighting and the hate was not good.'

After the judges controversially decided their last fight was who matter when he meets Evander Holyfield this month –

LENNOX LEWIS intends to keep the judges out of the headlines when he faces Evander Holyfield for the second time. Because this time he means to knock his opponent out. Lewis is vowing to be meaner, tougher and more aggressive when he fights Holyfield in the last big fight of the millennium on 13 November.

After the farce of the original encounter, when judges ruled a draw even though every expert on Earth had Lewis as the winner, it promises to be a real battle in Las Vegas.

'I will be victorious and I will make it more convincing this time,' Lewis told Cable Guide from his training camp in America. 'I don't believe Evander Holyfield can beat me. I have all the strength on my side, and the height and the speed. I am a superior boxer and I'm out to prove it – again.

'If an opportunity presents itself I definitely want to knock him out. After the last fight, a lot of people said I should have knocked him out. For me I don't think boxing is like that. You can't go in there expecting it to happen. But if you manage it, then that would put judgement on your side. You don't have to leave it to the judges if you knock him out. Then there would be only two judges – my right hand and my left hand.

'But I won't forget the science of the sport or the skill level either. That is important too.'

HOLYFIELD V LEWIS II – THE REMATCH LIVE ON SKY BOX OFFICE

Lennox Lewis defends his WBC World Heavyweight title against IBF and WBA champion Evander Holyfield at the Thomas & Mack Center in Las Vegas. The unification fight will be shown as a special event on Sky Box Office 3. Live coverage will begin at 10.00pm when Britain's Paul Ingle challenges Manuel Medina for the IBF World Featherweight title

Lewis has been in intensive training in a bid to beat Holyfield fair and square and emerge as undisputed heavyweight champion of the world. And this time there will be none of the cautious cat-and-mouse games which characterised the last fight.

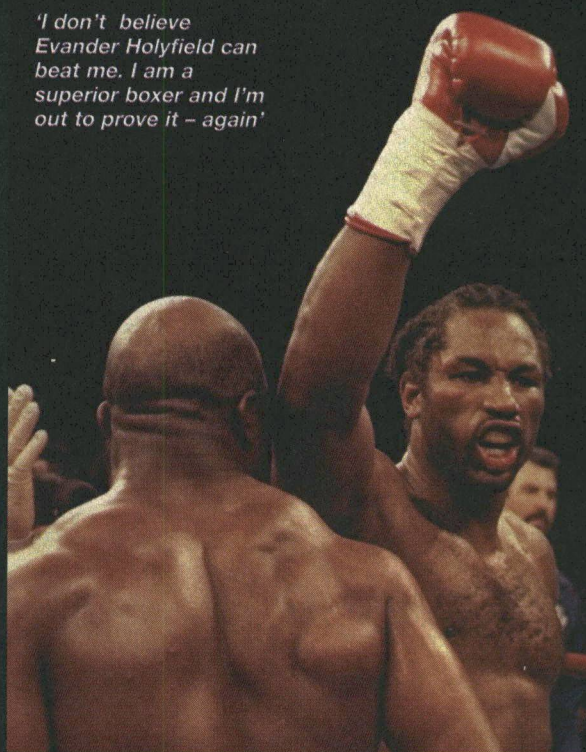

'It's more intensive this time. I realise what I need to train for,' he said. 'I know I have been in there already with him and I know what to expect. I'll be more aggressive in this fight. I'm going to go after him more and be relentless. There'll be no danger of easing off. 'Last time I had the fight sewn up and I suppose I did ease up. But I fail to see what Holyfield did to even give him a draw. I still closed the show, especially in the last round. This time there will be no doubt.' Since that infamous fight at Madison Square Garden, in New York in March, there is a sense that it has all got rather personal for Lewis. In the past he has been known as a gentle giant, the gentleman boxer, who is more interested in the science of the sport than the blood. But not this time. 'Holyfield won't admit that he lost the fight and that makes me lose respect for him,' said Lewis. 'It makes me realise he is still living in a fantasy world and it confirms my belief about what kind of hypocrite he is. 'Disliking him makes it easier. You have to have some disdain in you. That helps to motivate you and fire you up.

'I think you have to have a certain kind of attitude to be a boxer because you have to realise you are going in there to try and hurt the guy. You are basically handing out punishment.

'This time I'm even more fired up. Even the fact that he won't admit that he lost the fight does that for me. And realising he uses a lot of dirty tactics in there makes me fired up as well. 'The only little scars that I had last time were from his butting. In his previous fights he has done the same and he gets away with it. But being in there with him I realised he does it very often. He does it on purpose. But this time I'm going to punish him.'

'I don't believe Evander Holyfield can beat me. I am a superior boxer and I'm out to prove it – again'

LUCKY SEVEN FOR LENNOX

Glenn McCrory, Sky TV boxing commentator, gives Chris Hatherall his big fight verdict

I'M EXPECTING Lennox to knock Holyfield out. He should have done it last time and I think, having been to see him in America, he realises that. He will still use his jab, but this time he knows he is bigger and stronger. I would expect Lennox to really have a go at him in the fifth and sixth rounds and possibly finish it in the seventh. 'I would say Lennox was a little bit too cautious last time, but we are talking about the biggest prize in world sport and he has to give it a little more. 'People think of him as a tactical boxer, but he has the power to knock Holyfield out. I should know because I fought him in 1991 and he absolutely battered me. He threw me about like a rag doll and I was shocked by how strong he was. 'I went to see Holyfield recently and I think he too was shocked by Lennox's strength as well. His tactic is to wind Lennox up to make him angry. He thinks that if Lennox loses his temper he could get reckless. In the build-up to the fight you'll see Holyfield calling Lennox names, calling him soft and winding him up. And he'll refuse to admit he lost the last fight. That will make Lennox angry but I don't think he will let it affect him. 'We're good friends now and I think he is a class guy. He'll just go in there and be more aggressive with his jab and then knock the guy out. It won't be easy because Holyfield is probably the cleverest boxer in the game. He really thinks about the fight. But Lennox will be too good for him this time.'

TALE OF THE TAPE:

The first fight: 13 March 1999

Lennox Lewis v Evander Holyfield at Madison Square Garden

Judge One scores: 115-113 Holyfield

Eugenia Williams of the United States

Judge Two scores: 116-113 Lewis

Stanley Christodoulou of South Africa

Judge Three scores: 115-115 Draw

Larry O'Connell of England

The computer had Holyfield connecting with 130 punches compared to Lewis's overwhelmingly dominant 348 but Williams said: 'I didn't have the privilege of computers, but I saw Holyfield score with more punches.'

FA PREMIER LEAGUE: LIVERPOOL V BRADFORD CITY
SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM
by Ross Biddiscombe

The Anfield faithful were rocked early in the season when newly-promoted Watford beat Liverpool 1-0 in one of the Merseysiders' most depressing performances for several seasons, and this afternoon Bradford City hope to inflict the same kind of damage. Liverpool, however, have found better form since that defeat with solid contributions from their foreign legion including Patrik Berger (left). Bradford (whose Gunner Halle is pictured, right) may find it far from easy just to get a point.

LIVE NATIONWIDE LEAGUE DIVISION ONE: PORT VALE V CREWE SKY SPORTS 2 7.00PM

Two of the more unlikely teams in Division One - Port Vale (whose Tony Rougier is pictured, left) and Crewe (whose Colin Cram is pictured, right) - do battle. The two teams have overachieved for several seasons with Dario Gradi leading Crewe and Brian Horton now taking over the excellent work of long-time manager John Rudge. But it's the quality of the Crewe's play and the fighting quality of Vale that make this clash between two of the division's footballing purists stand out.

Name that looney tune

ASK your parents what cartoons they used to love watching when they were kids and you can bet their list will include some Looney Tunes offerings – maybe Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Sylvester and Tweety Pie, Road Runner or Porky Pig. Not only did Looney Tunes create the craziest cartoons during the Forties and Fifties, but they also provided us with many classic catchphrases. Who can forget Bugs Bunny's 'What's up, Doc?', Daffy's 'Sufferin' succotash' or Tweety Pie's 'I tawt I taw a putty cat?' With their nutty music and the sort of mad, energetic stories where anything can happen, Looney Tunes still look and sound like no other cartoons. And Cartoon Network thinks so too, as the channel is treating fans to a weekend's worth of Looney Tunes, running from Saturday 27th to Sunday 28th.

Shape-shifting fortunes! The heroic Animorphs can transform themselves into animals

Beware Slime monsters are ear!

Beware! If you've seen anyone with bright green slime coming out of their ears – even if it's a member of your family – you'd better take care. They may have become a Yeerk. Yeerks are evil, slug-like aliens that are aiming to take over the world by invading humans' brains, sucking their way in through their victims' ears. Don't panic though, as there's a good chance that Earth is going to stay ours because the human, shape-shifting Animorphs – Jack, Rachel, Marco, Cassie and Tobias – are battling to thwart the Yeerks' wicked plan somewhere on our dear planet right now. If you want to know how to combat the Yeerks just tune into Nickelodeon and watch the channel's exciting new series Animorphs. Nickelodeon from Monday 1st, 5.00pm.

 Egil Olsen's reign as manager of Wimbledon got off to a shaky start this season as he tried to change the habits of a Dons team who had finally learned how to pass the ball on the ground. By contrast, David O'Leary has been a success straight from the off at Leeds, where a young team has captured the hearts of many neutrals, thanks to the likes of Harry Kewell (pictured, right). But the Dons are tough to beat and can thank a rejuvenated striker John Hartson (pictured, left) who is always a danger.					10.00pm Freeview 10.05 FILM: Lover's Leap 11.40 Adult Stars Close-Up 12.00am Freeview 12.10am Panties 12.40 Fraulein Debutantes 12.55 Dr Anna St John 1.25 FILM: Island of Lust 2.35 Sam Gets Her Girl - Portrait 2.55-4.00am FILM: Return to Bazooka County Adult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between 10.00pm and 4.00am at £3.95. LIVE FA PREMIER LEAGUE: NEWCASTLE UNITED V EVERTON SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM

Most pundits at the start of the season would have placed these two teams in opposite places of the Premier League. Newcastle were thought to be rising with Ruud Gullit, while today's opponents at St James' Park, Everton (whose Kevin Campbell is pictured, right) would face another season of relegation worries. However, the Toffees have made a free-scoring start to the season and Newcastle, with Bobby Robson, have steadied after an early wobble, with help from the likes of Kieron Dyer (pictured, left).

Unlike most cards, Lombard Direct MasterCard has been designed to provide you with just one, low APR, whatever you use it for.

There is no fee with the Lombard Direct MasterCard. For all balance transfers, purchases and cash advances, the APR will be just 5.9% for the first six months and 15.9% APR thereafter – still more competitive than the standard APRs offered by many of the main card providers.

What's more, in addition to the usual benefits you'd expect from a MasterCard, you can:

- Withdraw up to £100 per day and you won't be charged a cash handling fee.
- Enjoy up to 100 days' insurance cover on most purchases over £50[†].
- Take advantage of up to 56 days' interest-free credit on purchases.
- Choose when you want to receive your statement each month.
- Choose between two different card designs.

CHECK HOW COMPETITIVE LOMBARD DIRECT MASTERCARD IS!

Take a look at the table below to see how much you could save by transferring to Lombard Direct MasterCard from the standard rate on these credit cards.

LIVE LPGA TOUR CHAMPIONSHIP
SKY SPORTS 3 9.00PM

The 1998 Pagenet Tour Championship was a runaway win for Britain's top lady golfer of the decade, Laura Davies (pictured). She's back to defend her title today, but will face the top 30 players from the US LPGA money list at the Desert Inn Golf Club in Nevada. Laura led the way last year with a 66 on day one and never looked back from there, eventually winning by four strokes. But defending any title requires exceptional talent - Davies has that, but will need all her experience to see her through.

Top chef Aldo Zilli shares his famous spaghetti with fresh lobster recipe!

Serves 2

Preparation time: 30 minutes

Cooking time: 15 minutes

THIS is my signature dish at Zilli Fish and is definitely one that I can never imagine removing from the menu. Everyone loves it. It tastes so good, and because people don't eat lobster very often it makes them feel that they are having a special treat. I buy live lobsters every day and amazingly managed to get through around 250 each week. Although I would recommend using fresh lobsters, frozen lobster meat can also be used. This is a particularly favourite dish with Les Dennis whenever he visits the restaurant.

Ingredients

175g (6oz) spaghetti
sprigs of fresh basil, to garnish
For the sauce:
1 x 900g (2lb) cooked lobster (or use 2 smaller lobsters)
2 beef tomatoes, skinned and seeded
60ml (4 tablespoons) chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
60ml (4 tablespoons) chopped fresh basil
2 garlic cloves, peeled and finely chopped salt and freshly ground black pepper
50ml (2fl oz) brandy
150ml (5fl oz) dry white wine

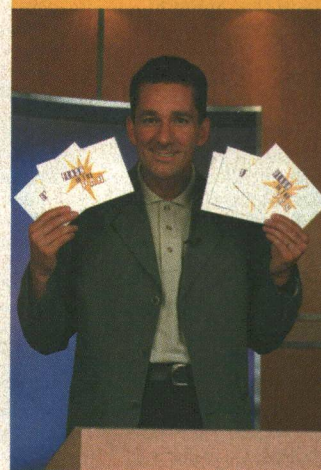

Method

1. Split the lobster in half lengthways and break off the claws. Gently remove the lobster meat from the shells, trying to keep the claw meat intact; chop the body meat. If you like, wash the lobster body shells and set aside for presentation.
2. Chop the tomato flesh and place in a bowl with the parsley, basil and half of the garlic. Season with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Set aside.
3. In a large frying pan, heat half of the oil and add the onion and remaining garlic. Stir in the lobster meat and pour over the brandy, ignite the alcohol to flambé. Once the flames have died down, add the tomato mixture together with the wine. Simmer for 5-8 minutes until juices reduce slightly.
4. Meanwhile, cook the spaghetti in a large pan of boiling salted water for 5-8 minutes, or according to the instructions on the packet, until al dente. Drain and add to the lobster.

The Rainmaker
Sky Premier 9.00pm
This rates as the most enjoyable John Grisham adaptation yet, thanks to Francis Coppola's deft direction and the engaging performances of Matt Damon as the inexperienced lawyer who battles a corrupt insurance company, and Danny DeVito as his endearingly seedy mentor.

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONSHIP LEGENDS EUROSPORT 10.00PM

In the midst of the Euro 2000 play-offs, it's time to reflect on the great European footballing nations of the past and tonight it's the turn of the Dutch. Holland may have lost two World Cup finals, but they reached the European Championship pinnacle in 1988 when the likes of Ruud Gullit and Marco van Basten secured the title. Modern stars like Dennis Bergkamp (pictured playing at Euro 96) will, no doubt, wish to replicate that success next year, when Holland co-host Euro 2000 with Belgium.

LIVE WORLD CUP OF GOLF SKY SPORTS 1 6.00AM

The victory of English duo Nick Faldo (pictured) and David Carter in this event last year was as welcome as it was unexpected. Faldo found a rare week of form and blended well with young Carter to romp away with this two-man team event. They will hope to defend their title at the Mines Resort Golf Club in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia this week, but 31 equally determined teams will be out to deny a second English victory at this lucrative $1.5m event.

SCI-FI ZONE

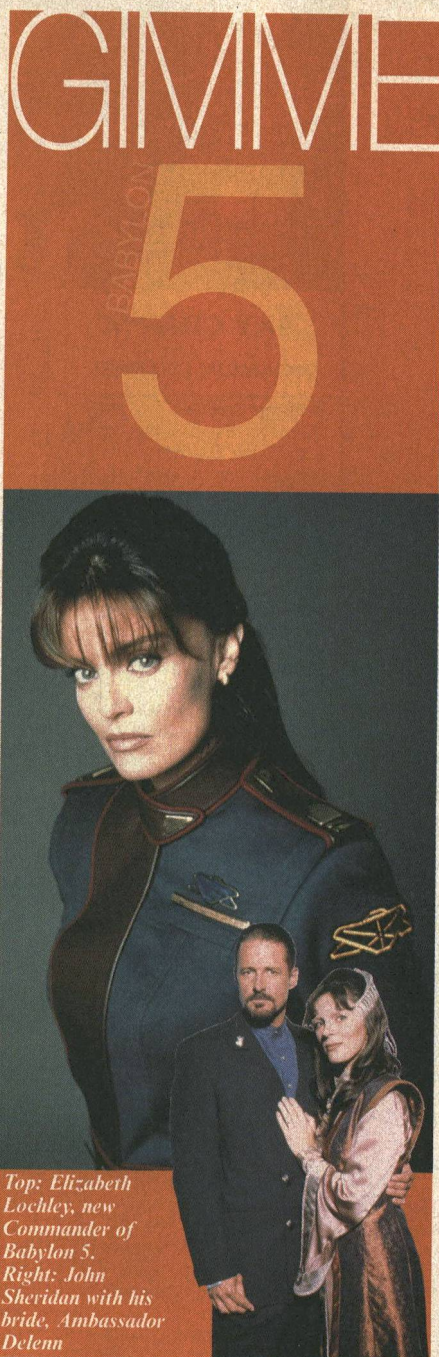

Your guide to out-of-this-world shows on cable. WORDS: PATRICK HOLM

THE fifth and final series of Babylon 5 (showing for the first time on cable this month on the Sci-Fi channel), possibly the most intelligent sci-fi series ever to grace our TV screens, faced considerable criticism before even one foot of film had been shot.

From the series' inception, Babylon 5 creator J Michael Straczynski had constructed a storyline that would extend over five years. But it wasn't until after the fourth season had finished that Straczynski was sure whether the fifth season would be commissioned. Hence, certain elements of the series' storyline had to be resolved during the fourth series, to make sure the story wouldn't be left hanging in limbo if the series didn't get picked up for its final year. The result was that the closing episode of season four left many fans unsatisfied.

Straczynski did this deliberately. Explaining his thoughts on the fifth series he says: 'I wanted to try new things. It's the fifth year. I can experiment. They can't do anything to me if I do – they can't throw me into jail, they can't cancel my show. So I thought I would take the opportunity to try different formats, different approaches. What's the worst that would happen? That episode won't work – that's about it. In this season, in the first 11 or 12 episodes, almost half the shows are off-format in one way or another. I enjoy those things, because they develop the muscles you have as a writer that you don't exercise all the time.'

In series five, life has changed considerably for the Babylon 5 Commander, John Sheridan (Bruce Boxleitner): elected President of the Interstellar Alliance, he's also married Minbari Ambassador Delenn. At his request, his former Officer Training School colleague and old flame, Elizabeth Lochley (Tracy Scoggins, familiar to viewers as Cat Grant in the series Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman), is made the new Commander of Babylon 5. As the season progresses, we see both Sheridan and Lochley struggling to deal with the new facets of their lives.

Other characters have also been affected by the events at the end of the fourth year. 'Having gone through all these changes,' Straczynski explains, 'sometimes you have to land for a moment, and ask, "Who am I now? How do I define myself in terms of my beliefs, in terms of my job and those around me?"' Sheridan has to go from being a soldier to being a diplomat in a more severe fashion, because in some ways he had more freedom before. If he had a problem, he would go out and shoot them. He can't do that any more. They're all in the process of redefining themselves, so at the end of the season they're all in very different places.'

The Narn Ambassador to Babylon 5, G'Kar, says Straczynski, 'has to find a way of changing how people see him, because he's getting too popular, and he's concerned with that – the messenger getting in the way of the message.' The representative of the Narn's arch-enemies, the Centauri, and G'Kar's personal nemesis, Londo Mollari, also undergoes a personal sea-change: 'Londo has to redefine himself as Emperor, which he doesn't particularly want to do: he has a responsibility to be that person and to set aside his own personal considerations for his safety to carry out the role expected of him.'

Thankfully for the fans, the critics were proved wrong – Babylon 5's last season is the best of them all. Importantly, the fifth series doesn't exclude new viewers; it works on so many levels that it is as appealing to first-timers as it is to the hardcore fans who've seen every episode. Far from being a swansong, Straczynski does more than tie up any loose ends, instead taking Babylon 5 to a higher level than the previous series, or any other sci-fi series before.

EARTH FINAL CONFLICT™

FUTURE WATCH

Gene Roddenberry's Earth: Final Conflict is going through some more changes as the third series hits American screens. Recognising that the second season wasn't the best that they could have offered – and that maybe changing the lead character was a mistake – the producers are now emphasising one-off stories, which they hope will appeal more to the general public. They are also introducing a new female character, played by NightMan's Jayne Heitmeyer, and adding some notable guest stars, including Star Trek: The Next Generation's

Marina Sirtis and Hercules himself, Kevin Sorbo.

Watch out for it on Sky early in 2000.

LOVE STARS BY MARGIE THILLART

Aries

21 March-20 April ★
 YOU'LL blow hot and cold this month, and your energy levels are likely to waver. As a result, loved ones won't know where they stand and you'll probably have a hard time meeting some of those pressing deadlines.

Libra

24 September-23 October ★★★
 YOU may be self-indulgent or inclined to go to excess, but at the end of the day you'll feel emotionally fulfilled. A surprise visit, invitation or contact with the past will be a bonus in this already sociable month.

Taurus

21 April-21 May ★★★
 A FEW small stumbling blocks will mar an otherwise perfect month. Your ruler Venus makes you more attractive and brings you into contact with interesting people, but there'll also be times when nothing goes according to plan.

Scorpio

24 October-22 November ★★★
 SUN and Mars combine to give you the edge over others and a decent dose of luck. You can afford to set your sights high during this lucky month, as it appears you will be triumphant in even the most challenging situations.

Gemini

22 May-21 June ★
 WITH Mercury static until the 25th, plans may be thwarted or the lines of communication will be crossed. Through no fault of your own, you may find yourself having to eat your words or explain your behaviour to loved ones.

Sagittarius

23 November-22 December ★
 YOU may take one step forward and two back, but by month's end you'll be fairly happy with the progress you've made. The planets render you obsessive and self-critical until the 23rd, but after that your easy-going nature will return.

Cancer

22 June-23 July ★★★
 THIS month's sensuous stars guarantee most of your needs will be met with very little effort on your part. People who have your best interests at heart are likely to pamper you and lend unqualified support to your schemes.

Capricorn

23 December-20 January ★★
 WITH intense energy around your sign, you won't be interested in superficial people or light-hearted conversation. It may be best to mix in familiar company this month, rather than trying to form any new relationships.

Leo

24 July-23 August ★
 SOMEONE who is jealous or spiteful could cross your path, so keep your defences up this month. Yours is usually a forgiving sign, but now you'll be more inclined to hold a grudge against those who try to undermine your efforts.

Aquarius

21 January-19 February ★★
 THE rebellious part of your nature will do battle with your more conservative side in the weeks ahead. Hence, you may wish to break free from the constraints of a relationship, but a sense of loyalty will probably hold you back.

Virgo

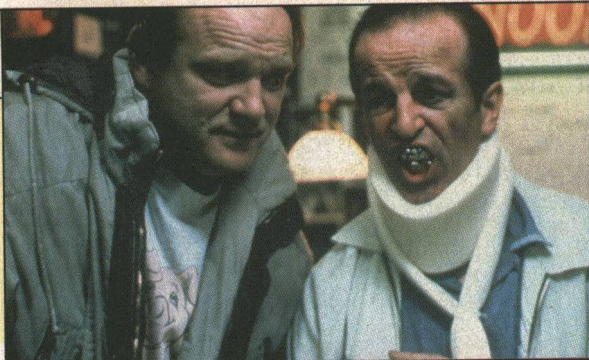

24 August-23 September ★★★
 VENUS in your sign until the 9th guarantees good times and gives you a romantic boost. If you've been feeling emotionally isolated or neglected in recent months, there'll be a distinct change of fortunes soon.

Pisces

20 February-20 March ★★★
 TIME is on your side this month, so take a leisurely look at your life and decide where you'd like to go next. Destiny is working in your favour and by year end, you'll be more emotionally fulfilled or financially better off.

NOVEMBER BIRTHDAYS

LIVE NATIONWIDE LEAGUE: WALSALL V FULHAM SKY SPORTS 3 7.00PM

Both Walsall (whose Mark Robbins is pictured, left) and Fulham gained promotion to Division One last season, but that's where the similarity ends. The Londoners have a rich chairman, an ex-England player as manager and dreams of the Premier League, while the Midlands are only thinking of survival. They clash tonight at the Bescot Stadium with Walsall desperate for even a point at home. Fulham, with Lee Clark (pictured, right) in midfield, will settle for nothing less than three points.

Hundreds of users say YES!

GREAT CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEA

"See for yourself"
says Anita Harris

"It's the question I'm always asked and the answer is YES - Slendertone is the effortless way to get the body of your dreams! With Slendertone Body you'll really start to see a flatter tummy and more shapely bottom in as little as 3 weeks - especially when combined with a healthy diet and some exercise."
"It uses Electronic Muscle Stimulation (EMS) which is a technique which has been developed for over 30 years by Bio Medical Research, the manufacturers of Slendertone. Try this safe and portable body beautifier, and see for yourself!"

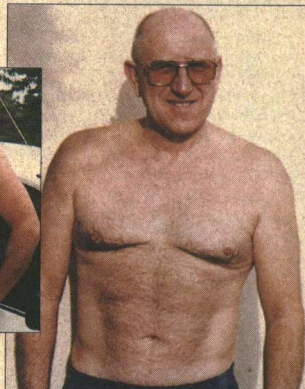

Gerald Griffiths shapes up with Slendertone

When Gerald Griffiths turned 56 last year, he found himself beginning to sag in the middle, so he decided to rectify the problem - with a little help from Slendertone. Gerald, from Gloucestershire, stunned his friends and delighted his wife with his newly-acquired six-pack.

"I've never had such definition on my abdomen before", says Gerald. "It's fantastic... within a month I saw my shape change completely. I've never looked as good as this."

BEFORE: from fat

AFTER: to flat

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY...

Our man who tested it reckoned it worked.
DAILY STAR

Kevin, 38, a self confessed couch potato who loves junk food and beer tested Slendertone Body Profile Sport for the News of the World. "...three weeks later, there's definitely a slight six pack when I tense my stomach. I'm well pleased with the results".

NEWS OF THE WORLD

"...The sensation's not unpleasant and you can even do the ironing or walk around the house while it does its bizz. After a month, I was definitely more toned..."

Meredith Berry,
ELLE magazine

"I have suffered from ME for several years... I miss the exercise I used to take, and became concerned about my evident loss of muscle tone... I found that using Slendertone every day on my abdomen, my muscle tone improved after about 3 weeks and my waist firmed up. It is very enjoyable to use, soothing and relaxing and by contracting the muscles it must improve my circulation as well".

Susannah Greene

"I wanted something to strengthen my stomach for extra training. I've used other exercisers but nothing really worked for me until I tried Slendertone. It really is the best".

Charlie Fagbuyi, 25,
Tennis Coach

"...After a hysterectomy operation earlier this year, I thought that I would never get rid of the protruding tummy that I was left with... I would certainly recommend Slendertone to anyone..."

Christine Camenzuli,

Back in shape after my baby

After the birth of her son, 26 year old Clare Barr from Haddenham, Bucks was soon back in her size 10 jeans. But she hadn't bargained for being so out of condition with no time to get to the gym - so she turned to Slendertone.

"I noticed a difference after two weeks," says Clare. "After a month my stomach was flatter and I had my waist back. It was as if I had been doing 50 sit-ups a night - without leaving my chair."

...and the medical profession

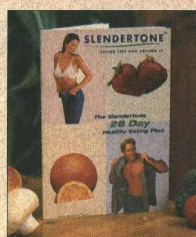

Researchers at the University of Birmingham undertook a four week study of a group using EMS machines. The results show that EMS can be just as effective as sit-ups in tightening and toning abdominal muscles. "There was clearly a beneficial effect," says Dr Martin Lakie, who found "a definite change in muscle tone."

MANCHESTER UNITED V PALMEIRAS DE AMERICA EUROSPORT 10.00PM

Manchester United are in Tokyo for the European/South American Cup which pits the winners of the two continent's club championships in a one-game showdown. OLDIES BUT NOT GOODIES?

WHY are Sky Premier and Sky MovieMax showing such rubbish in their prime viewing slots? Citizen Kane, Ghostbusters II, Dirty Dancing, Ben-Hur, Shirley Valentine - shouldn't these films be on Sky Cinema?

ENEMY MIME

I WOULD like to thank VH1 for showing Party in the Park as I wanted to see The Corrs. But I can't help noticing that most of today's singers and bands no longer write or co-write their songs and in shows they only mime. A lot of bands are remixing hits from the Sixties, Seventies and Eighties. In my opinion, true singers and bands are those who write or co-write the majority of their songs, are able to play an instrument and sing live. I have found that quite a few of today's bands don't do any of the above. I am a massive fan of The Corrs, could you please print a picture of them?

WITH THE ACCENT ON THE ENGLISH

COULD someone explain to me why almost every white actor who appears in American films with an English accent inevitably turns out to be a villain? It seems that English-speaking actors are now typecast as no-good rotters. In the mid-Seventies, my wife and I spent a month travelling from Vancouver to Tijuana and back and were flattered to be asked to speak 'some more of that English'. With the character assassination that has since taken place in the American film industry, it would come as no surprise to me if I were viewed with suspicion by the locals should I return again.

WHAT THE DEVIL!

WELL, stone me! I've just heard that there will be no more episodes of the devilishly good Brimstone. How could this be? I've thoroughly enjoyed every episode of this brilliant series - the concept is refreshingly original and intriguing, and the wonderfully cast Peter Horton and John Glover give intense performances as Ezekiel Stone and The Devil. I love the way the relationship between the two combines dark humour and respect. I didn't think there was a chance in Hell this series could be axed and I'm sure there are legions of fans who feel the same way. Please, producers, what about the rest of the 113 escaped souls for Stone to find and send back to Hell? The possibilities for future episodes are mind-blowing! Don't cast it forever to the flames - give The Devil his due and give Brimstone a second shot at life on Earth!

IN GOOD NICK

THANK YOU to Nick Junior for keeping some programmes for the under-fives on during the summer holidays. Most of the other cable and terrestrial channels cancelled nearly all of these and replaced them with programmes for teenagers. I know that older kids need to watch something during the holidays but what do they think happens to the under-fives? Are they beamed to another planet where they become uninterested in TV? My two year old doesn't watch TV all the time but loves Blue's Clues and other Nick Jr favourites. These were moved to 6.00am and I just taped the programmes and replayed them when necessary. Please would other schedulers follow suit and not forget the under-fives during the winter holidays.

WANTED: CLASSICS LIKE THESE ...

I LIKE watching UK Gold and Carlton Select, but it would be nice to see some old TV Westerns, such as Range Rider, The Lone Ranger, and some classic action with William Tell or Robin Hood. We have too many soap operas and chat shows. Life's too short - let's have some fun for a change. I'm sure there are plenty of quality programmes in the archives rather than constant repeats.

SKY FLYING HIGH

I'M JUST writing to say a huge thank you to Sky One for bringing back Sliders and showing the new series of Stargate SG-1. This channel is now the best on cable, with cool new series such as Futurama, Guiding Stars and Family Guy.

SAVING JERI RYAN

THANK YOU, Sky One, for continuing to bring us up-to-date episodes of shows in the Star Trek franchise. I've looked forward to the new season of Deep Space Nine so I can see the conclusion of a wonderful story, but my favourite show is Voyager. The show's highlight is the thrilling and versatile performance given by Jeri Ryan. She has turned Seven of Nine into television's most amazing female character. Seven's transition from Borg to human is an on-going joy to watch, and just when I thought the character could not possibly scale new heights, Jeri's incredible talent produced the most beautiful singing voice in the wonderful episode 'Someone to Watch Over Me'. I know Jeri also appears in Dark Skies, but could you tell me what else I might be able to see my favourite actress in?

Mary Nistam
Greater Manchester

● Among the credits on Jeri Ryan's CV, Mary, are guest appearances in episodes of Melrose Place, Murder, She Wrote and Matlock. She has also starred in the fact-based TV movie In the Line of Duty: Ambush in Waco and the uncompromising independent film Men Cry Bullets.

FOOTBALL FAVOURITISM?

I'M WRITING to complain about the poor coverage of lower division football on the Sky Sports channels. Most of the matches shown are drawn from the Premier League or the Nationwide First Division. I support Manchester United but follow my home town club, Macclesfield Town. Lower league division clubs need television revenue and Sky Sports should help by showing a Second or Third Division match each week. Every league club in the country should be featured in a televised match during the season.

Stephen Cowan (aged 14)
Cheshire

● A Sky spokesperson told us that Sky Sports have a contract with the Nationwide League to screen a total of 60 live matches from the three divisions, as well as the promotion play-off matches and the three play-off finals. There will be no televised Macclesfield matches this year, Stephen, but your local side might feature in Sky's live fixture list in 2000, though details of next year's games won't be made available until the end of 1999.
